

The diagram illustrates the layout of a book spread with four key lines: a green line for the fold, a blue line for the safety margin, a green line for the flap, and a black line for the bleed. The fold line is at the top center, the safety line is below it, the flap line is further down, and the bleed line is at the very bottom. A horizontal line with arrows at both ends passes through the center of the spread. The text labels are positioned around the diagram with arrows pointing to the respective lines.
