

The diagram shows a rectangular print layout with several key lines and dimensions. A vertical green line runs down the center, representing a fold line. Two horizontal blue lines, one near the top and one near the bottom, represent safety lines. Two diagonal red lines, one in the top-left and one in the top-right, represent cut lines. Arrows point from these lines to their respective labels. A horizontal arrow points from the left blue line to the right blue line. A horizontal arrow points from the right green line to the left. Dimensions for finished size and bleed are provided at the bottom.
